

Job Opportunity: Architecture Intern

Summary

475 is a rapidly growing Brooklyn-based startup that imports, distributes and advises on high performance green building components throughout North America. We're focused on transforming the US construction marketplace from coast-to-coast toward low-energy, high-performance building design, with a focus on sustainable materials. We seek a highly motivated intern interested in sharpening their skills in the field of architecture. The position is 3 days per week, and lasts up to 6 months (depending on availability). It may be required that you bring your own laptop. Interns receive a modest stipend and the opportunity to interact with many architecture, engineering, Passive House and green building firms across NYC and throughout North America.

Responsibilities

- Create and edit CAD, SketchUp, and energy models of recommended building assemblies for use by architects and engineers
- Research technical specifications of building products for use in high-performance buildings
- Generate content for our blog and social media accounts
- Assist in development of presentations
- Build models to demonstrate real-life product uses
- Make minor updates to the website
- Aid with miscellaneous administrative tasks
- Attend 475 sponsored events

Desired Qualities

- Currently seeking a graduate or undergraduate degree in architecture, construction, or related field
- Strong interest in high-performance, low-energy building practices, especially Passive House
- Experience with AutoCAD, SketchUp and Excel
- Proactive with a strong work ethic
- Ability to work well both independently and as a member of a team
- Available to work 24 hours or more per week

Background

- Currently seeking a graduate or undergraduate degree in architecture, construction, sustainability planning, or related field
- Experience in a fast-paced office setting
- Business or sustainability planning experience a plus
